Feature Story - Zimbabwe - Knowledge's Story

When Knowledge first began farming, he grew groundnuts and sorghum. Life was hard. Due to erratic weather yields produced were poor. Buyers offered low prices for his products, and his income was too low to support his family.

Knowledge (pictured above) heard about the BRAC Project. Through them he learned about using the locally available Nhengeni seed.

Nhengeni seeds are valuable as they contain oil which can be extracted to make cosmetics. The good things about this fruit, is that it grows in the wild.

Knowledge never thought he could make money from this fruit. But with proper training on harvesting and prepping, Knowledge now provides for his family and invests in other businesses.

Thank you Commitment for Life.

Pray with us:

Dear God, thank you for your gift of the world you created. We thank you for flowers and trees; for animals, for birds and sea creatures; We thank you for sunshine and rain. We thank you for farmers, workers of the land, wholesalers and for retailers. God of the harvest, of peace and of hope, we lift before you the struggles of the earth. Give us wisdom to care for your world, courage to seek justice, and have thankful hearts. Amen.
