Power is like a hammer

It can destroy, or it can build. Power is simply the ability to act.

WHAT IT IS MADE OF

Organised people

Neighbours, members, and institutions acting together.

Organised money

Resources gathered and pointed at a purpose.

WHAT GUIDES IT: SELF-INTEREST

What you care about

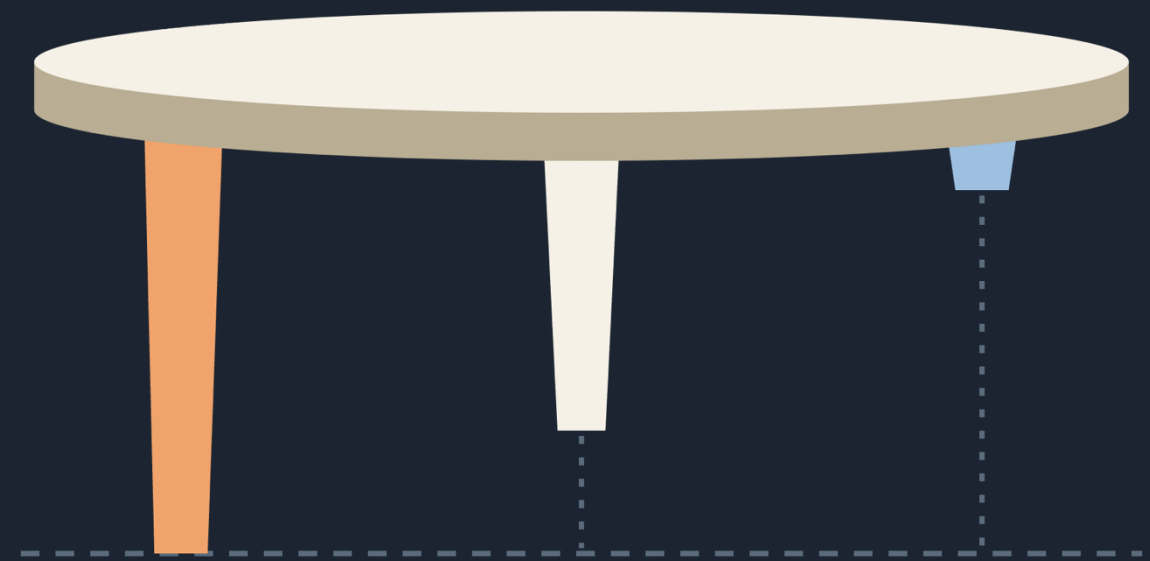

Why would you pick up the hammer at all?

Who holds you accountable

Church, family, and neighbours keep it pointed at the common good.

Self-interest, not self*ish* interest.

Society is like a three-legged stool

Corporations

Organised money and people, for shareholders

Government

Organised money through taxes and levies

Civic sector

Where most of us live, and where the church works of UK households had Amazon Prime in 2025: about 12.78 million, paying £95 each. That is over £1.2bn a year from subscriptions alone.

45%

No wonder it feels wobbly. We have the least money, but we have people. So we organise them, and we build power.

Fleeing the fires of hell

■ STREETS of fear: residents of Uvedale Road, South Bank, are living in fear after being plagued by arson attacks

■ THE situation is so bad that the number of boarded-up and burnt-out homes now outnumber those that aren't
